

American Job Centers: Checklist

Job seekers might be interested in looking at American Job Centers in their employment search. Services are offered for individuals with disabilities — though they vary by center, programs such as obtaining a work permit and preparing for high school equivalency exams, are available for free.

Take a moment to look at your local American Job Center. Here are a few questions to consider while exploring:

- ★ Which American Job Center locations are accessible to you?

- ★ Do they offer virtual and/or in-person services?

- ★ Do they offer youth services?

- ★ What are the top three to five services that might be helpful to you right now?

- ★ What are the top three to five services that might be helpful to you in the future?